DDS&T Travel

Mr. Dirks visited [redacted] 25X1 [redacted] this past week. [redacted] discussions included "artificial 25X1 intelligence" applications, large (256K) random access memories planned 25X1 for 1985, Japanese competition, Very High Speed Integrated Circuits (VHSIC), robotics, and some [redacted] research in the gallium arsenide arena. Of 25X1 particular interest in the VHSIC area was [redacted] architecture. This consists 25X1 of a family of seven chips, each of which can be customized by changing, at most, the last two or three of 80 to 90 processing steps. The permutation of the seven basic chips with possible customized changes results in a powerful and flexible capability.

[redacted] Mr. Dirks reviewed a number of programs sponsored 25X1 by the DDS&T. One, the softcopy image data exploitation [redacted] system, 25X1 is nearly ready for delivery [redacted] 25X1 [redacted] (designator.) This interactive 25X1 capability will be a significant advance in the image exploitation tools [redacted] An [redacted] system is also planned for NPIC [redacted] 25X1 in November of this year.
